

How to Make a Flip Book

Overview

Teachers or students can make flip books (also called “flap books”) that feature songs or chants, stories written and illustrated by students, or text and images related to topics from class. In the Unit 1 video, two students read/sing The Pink Book together in a learning station.

Project Materials

- three or more sheets of paper (depending on how many pages the book needs to have)
- scissors
- stapler

Instructions

1. Place three or more sheets of paper together. Use extra-large paper to make large books with large print. Add illustrations or photos as you like.

2. Fold in half and staple the sheets at the fold line. This becomes the top of the book (see The Pink Book image on right) or the side of the book (The Blue Book, below The Pink Book).

3. For a split or “double” flip book, cut the sheets in half. Each half can have different information. (The Red Book and The Green Book have side-by-side formatting in the bottom image.)
